Are you curious about science yet slightly hesitant? Or perhaps you're a science enthusiast excited by its endless possibilities. Some might be indifferent, while others are slightly fearful. Step into Joseph Wright of Derby's captivating world with 'An Experiment on a Bird in an Air Pump' (1768). This brilliant painting offers a unique lens into the mentioned relationships with science.

This course scrutinizes such diverse perspectives by exploring the profound insights of philosophers like Bacon, Hume, Heidegger, Popper, Kuhn, and more!

Join us on this enlightening philosophical adventure - no need to purchase any book! Let's embark on this exploration together!

This 3-unit course satisfies SJSU Studies V: Cultures and Global Understanding.

Prerequisite(s): Completion of Core General Education, and upper division standing are prerequisites to all SJSU studies courses. Completion of, or co-registration in, 100W is strongly recommended.
